

Press Release

For Immediate Release
August 7, 2013

Intaver Institute Inc. and PMCentersUSA announced that they had entered into a partnership agreement. PMCentersUSA and Intaver see this as a mutually beneficial agreement that will allow PMCentersUSA to integrate a leading project risk management and analysis solution into their project risk management training. It will allow students to see how they can analyze and manage their project risks using a next generation project management software.

"PMCentersUSA is an established and respected provider of project management training", said Intaver's Michael Trumper. This partnership between Intaver and PMCentersUSA will showcase RiskyProject's capabilities to a wide range of project risk managers in many different sectors and help us reach some of these emerging markets for our solutions."
